

DON'T DROP IT ON THE FLOOR

BY CHILDBOOK.AI

Tunde loved plantain chips at break time. Crunch, crunch, crunch! They were so delicious. When he finished eating, he looked at the wrapper in his hand. Then he just dropped it on the playground floor. 'I'll pick it up later,' he thought. But he never did. Soon there were wrappers everywhere Tunde went. His teacher Mrs. Adewale frowned. His friends stepped over the mess. But Tunde didn't notice.

One bright morning, something amazing happened. A little green dustbin in the corner started to wiggle and shake. 'Tunde! Tunde!' called a cheerful voice. Tunde spun around. The dustbin had eyes and a big smile! 'My name is Binnie,' it said. 'I've been watching you drop wrappers everywhere. Will you come with me on a magical adventure?' Tunde's eyes grew wide. A talking dustbin? 'Yes!' he shouted.

Binnie took Tunde around the school. First, they saw flies buzzing over old food wrappers. 'Yuck!' said Tunde. Then they found blocked drains full of rubbish causing puddles. A bird was tangled in plastic. 'Oh no!' Tunde gasped. 'When you drop litter, everyone suffers,' Binnie explained gently. 'But you can help!' Tunde felt sorry. 'Where should this wrapper go?' Binnie asked, pointing at trash. 'In you!' Tunde answered.

Tunde picked up every wrapper he had dropped. He used Binnie properly. His classmates noticed and started helping too! Soon the playground sparkled. Mrs. Adewale smiled proudly. 'Tunde, you're our first Don't Drop It On The Floor Ambassador!' she announced. Tunde beamed. Together, the whole class made a pledge: 'I promise to keep my school clean. I will use the dustbin. I will never litter. Together we will keep our community beautiful!'
