Veni loved Tamil songs so sweet, humming tunes from head to feet. But when Paati asked, "Sollu kannu?" Veni froze, no words would come to her. "I want to speak!" she said with a sigh. "I'll learn Tamil, I will try!" She grabbed her book with colors bright, and started her journey into the light.

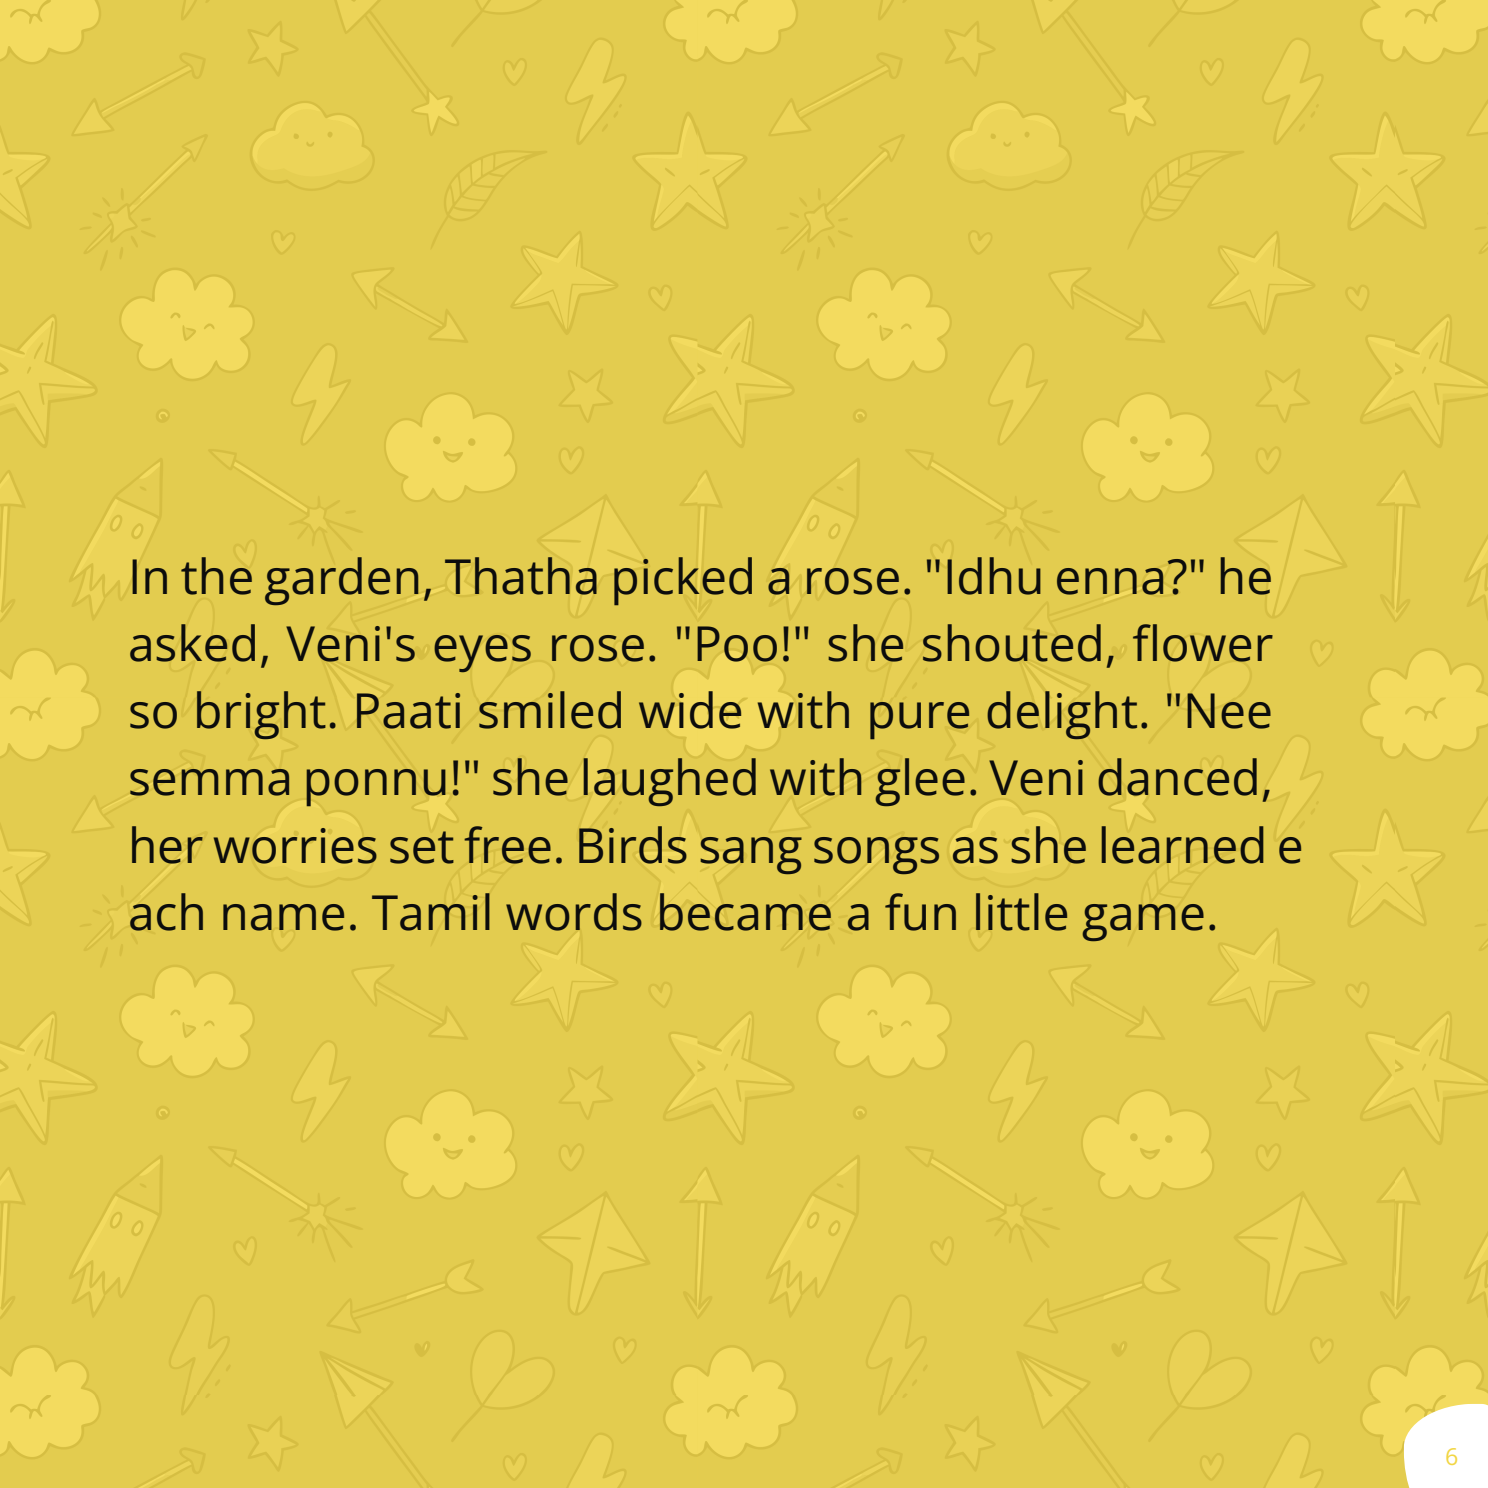

In the kitchen, Amma stirred the pot. "Sollu 'thanni' for water, nice and hot!" Veni repeated, "Thanni, thanni!" Giggling loud, feeling kind of funny. Appa clapped, "Semma! Well done, dear!" "Innum oru vaarthai!" he said with cheer. Veni learned "chapati" and "pazham" too. Her Tamil words grew, fresh and new.

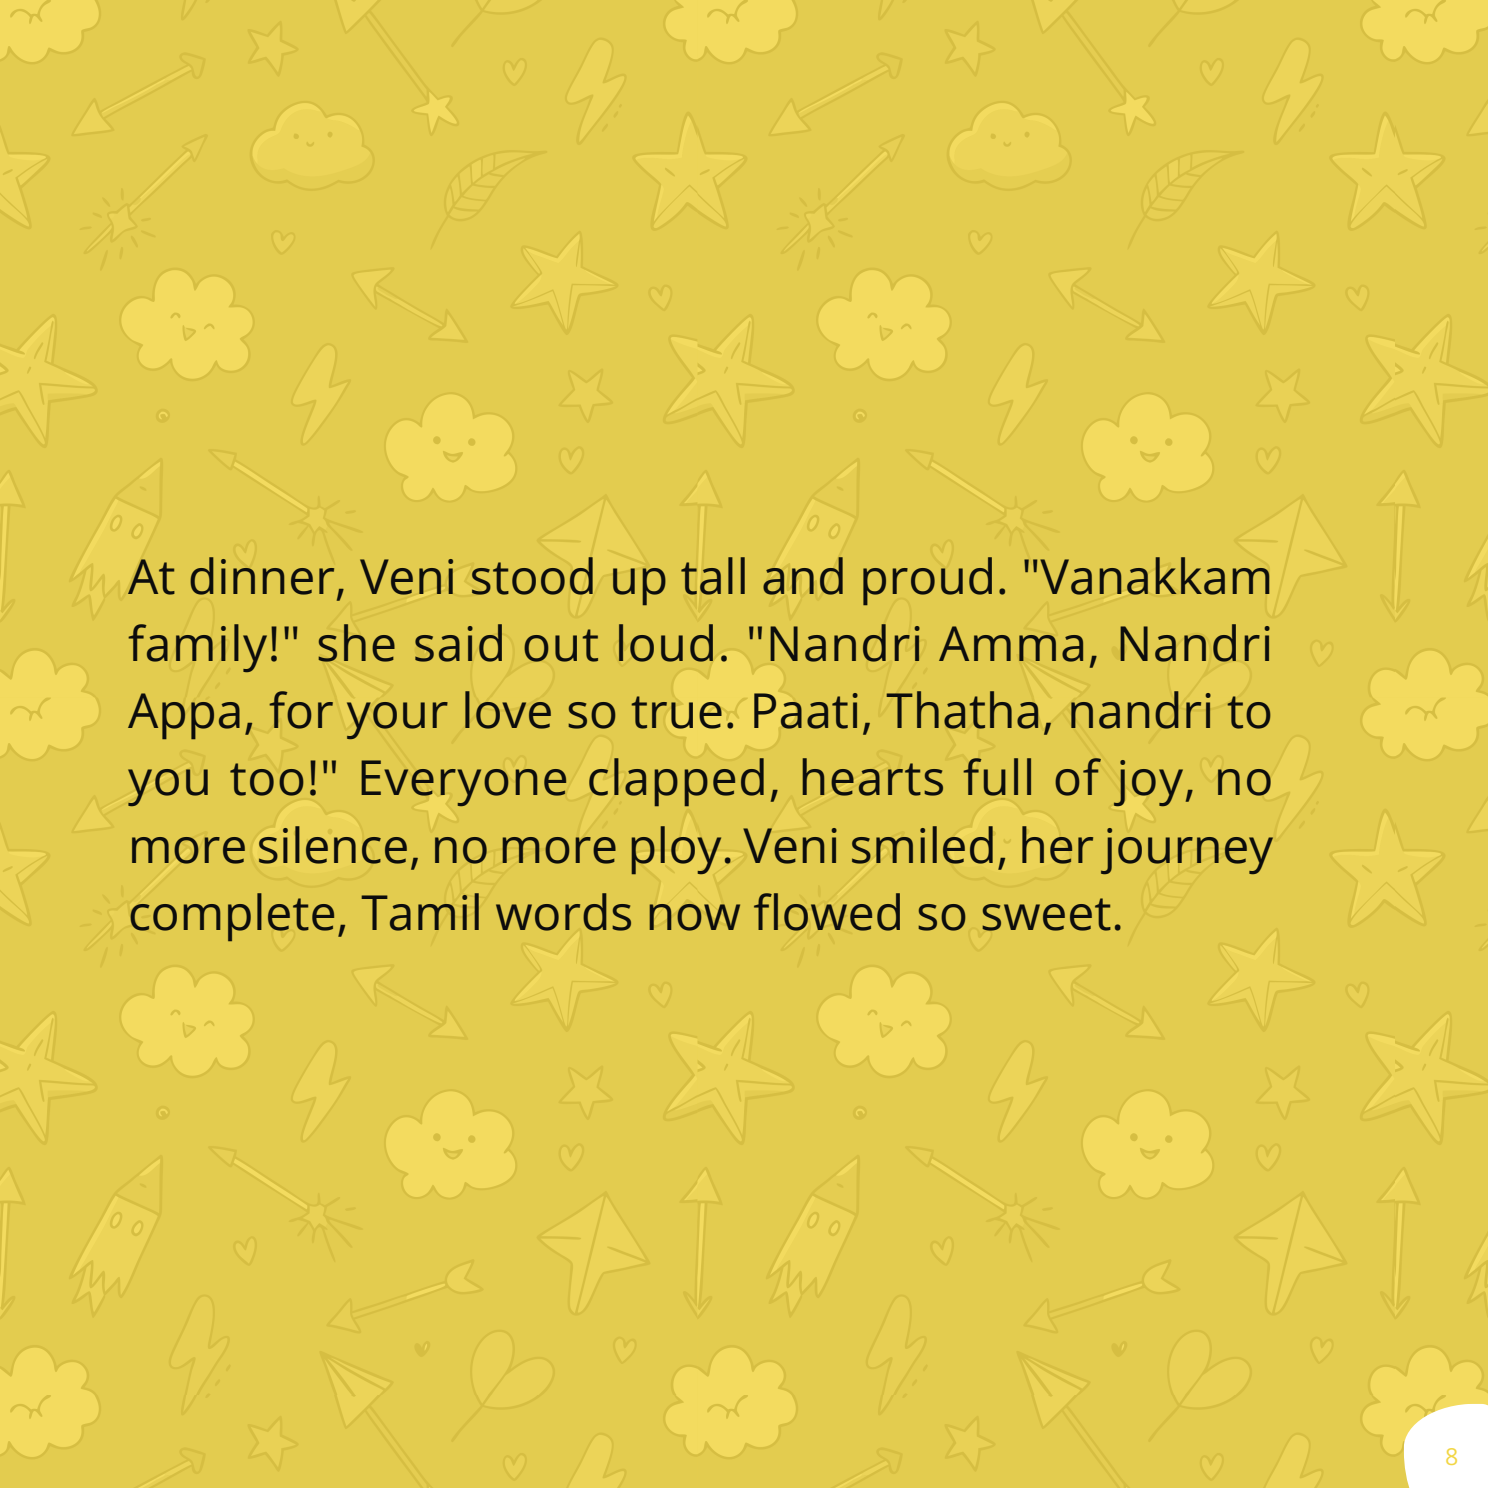

Thanni!

In the garden, Thatha picked a rose. "Idhu enna?" he asked, Veni's eyes rose. "Poo!" she shouted, flower so bright. Paati smiled wide with pure delight. "Nee semma ponnu!" she laughed with glee. Veni danced, her worries set free. Birds sang songs as she learned each name. Tamil words became a fun little game.

At dinner, Veni stood up tall and proud. "Vanakkam family!" she said out loud. "Nandri Amma, Nandri Appa, for your love so true. Paati, Thatha, nandri to you too!" Everyone clapped, hearts full of joy, no more silence, no more ploy. Veni smiled, her journey complete, Tamil words now flowed so sweet.
