

THE TALE OF THE WILLOW

BY CHILDBOOK.AI

Willow hopped along the meadow path on her little blue bike. Her white fur gleamed in the sunshine. "Look how fast I can go!" she called to the Burrow Bunnies. Mrs Burrow Bunny clapped her paws. "Wonderful, dear!" Willow stopped by the stream to collect smooth pebbles. She had lived here for six whole years. The Burrow Bunnies tucked her in every night. They read stories and sang soft songs. Willow felt safe and loved in their cosy burrow home.

One morning, Willow noticed Mr Burrow Bunny looked worried. His ears drooped low. Later, she heard loud voices from the grown-up rabbits' room. Willow hugged her favourite stuffed carrot close. "Why are they upset?" she whispered. The next day, Mr Burrow Bunny packed a small bag. "I'm going to stay at another burrow for a while," he said gently. Willow's nose twitched nervously. "But why?" she asked. "It's not about you, little one," he said softly. But Willow wasn't sure.

Mrs Burrow Bunny took Willow to visit the Bramble Burrow rabbits. They had kind eyes and warm smiles. "Would you like some carrot cake?" asked Mrs Bramble. Willow nodded shyly. The Bramble Burrow had colourful cushions and a cosy fireplace. "Sometimes rabbits need different homes," Mrs Bramble explained gently. "But you're always loved, wherever you are." Willow thought about this. The Bramble Bunnies showed her a sunny room with a window overlooking the wildflowers. "This could be your special space," they said.

That evening, Mrs Burrow Bunny sat with Willow under the willow tree. "The changes aren't because of you," she said, stroking Willow's ears. "Grown-up rabbits have grown-up problems sometimes." Willow looked up at the stars. "Will I always be loved?" she asked. "Always," said Mrs Burrow Bunny. "By us, by the Brambles, by everyone who knows you." Willow felt a warm feeling in her chest. She still had questions, but she knew one thing for certain: she was a very special rabbit, and that would never change.

Spark Your Child's Imagination

and create a personalized book in which you are the main character

BECOME A BOOK
HERO

CHILDBOOK.AI