

MORE THAN ENOUGH

BY CHILDBOOK.AI

Grandpa shook his head. 'Every family needs a son to carry on the name,' he said. Dad just smiled and pulled little Mia close. 'Love, kindness, and courage don't care if you're a boy or a girl,' Dad said. 'They live in the heart.' Mia giggled, not quite understanding, but she liked the sound of those words. She squeezed Dad's hand tight, ready to prove he was right.

The next day, Mia heard a frightened meow. Whiskers, the neighborhood cat, was stuck high in the old oak tree! Without hesitation, Mia grabbed the ladder and climbed branch by branch. Her hands shook, but she kept going. 'Almost there, Whiskers!' she called. Finally, she scooped up the trembling cat and climbed down safely. Dad cheered from below. 'That took real courage, Mia!' he said, giving her a proud high-five.

At school, Mia noticed her classmate Sam sitting alone, tears in his eyes. He'd forgotten his lunch at home. Mia walked over and sat beside him. 'You can share mine,' she said, splitting her sandwich in half. Sam's face lit up with a grateful smile. They ate together, laughing about silly jokes. Mia's teacher watched and smiled too. Kindness, Mia was learning, didn't need to be big to matter.

That evening, Grandpa heard about the cat and the sandwich. He watched Mia hug Dad tightly, her eyes bright with joy. 'She's brave and kind,' Grandpa said softly. 'Maybe I was wrong.' Dad nodded. 'She's exactly who she's meant to be.' Grandpa smiled and hugged Mia too. 'You're more than enough, little one,' he whispered. Mia beamed, knowing her heart was full of everything that truly mattered.
