

QUEST FOR THE SECRET TREASURE

BY CHILDBOOK.AI

Sue'Nai bounced into Assad's room. "What's that?" she asked, pointing at old paper on his desk. Assad grinned. "I found a treasure map in Grandma's attic!" Sue'Nai's eyes grew wide. "Real treasure?" Assad nodded. "Want to help me find it?" Sue'Nai clapped her hands. "Yes! Yes!" Assad studied the map carefully. "It starts at the big oak tree in our backyard," he said. Sue'Nai grabbed his hand. "Let's go right now!" They raced downstairs together, ready for adventure.

Assad counted ten steps from the oak tree. "The map says to turn left at the garden fence," he explained. Sue'Nai skipped alongside him. They found a red ribbon tied to the fence post. "Look! A clue!" Sue'Nai squealed. Assad read the note attached. "Walk to where the birds drink." Sue'Nai thought hard. "The birdbath!" They hurried to the stone birdbath. Another ribbon pointed toward the old shed. Assad high-fived his sister. "We're getting close!" Sue'Nai jumped excitedly. "I love treasure hunting!"

The shed door creaked open. Assad shined his flashlight inside. "The map shows an X right here," he whispered. Sue'Nai spotted a loose floorboard. "Assad, look!" Together they lifted the board. A small wooden box sat in the hollow space. Sue'Nai's hands trembled with excitement. "Can we open it?" Assad carefully pulled out the box. It had their names carved on top. "Grandma must have made this for us!" Sue'Nai touched the letters of her name. "It's so pretty!"

Assad opened the box slowly. Inside were two friendship bracelets and a photo of them as babies. Sue'Nai gasped. "We were so tiny!" There was also a note from Grandma. Assad read aloud: "The best treasure is family love." Sue'Nai hugged her brother tight. Assad tied a bracelet on her wrist, and she helped with his. "This is the best treasure ever!" Sue'Nai said. Assad smiled. "Because we found it together." They ran inside to thank Grandma, holding hands all the way.
