

THE FIVE SENSES SAFARI

BY CHILDBOOK.AI

Lizzie the Lizard found something exciting under a leaf. "Look, friends! A treasure map!" she called. Felix the Fox sniffed the old paper carefully. "It smells like berries," he said with his sensitive nose. Bart the Bear looked at the colorful drawings. Hoover the Owl hooted, "I can see the path from my tree!" Terry the Otter splashed happily. "An adventure! Let's use our senses to find the treasure!" The five friends gathered around, ready to explore Wonder Woods together.

The map showed berry bushes as the first clue. Felix lifted his big ears and twitched his nose. "Follow me! I smell something sweet this way!" The friends walked through tall grass. Bart touched the soft flowers with his paws. "These feel fuzzy," he said. Lizzie zoomed ahead quickly. Terry splashed in a stream nearby. Soon Felix stopped. "There! Wild strawberries!" Everyone tasted the sweet berries. "Yummy! Our taste sense helped us," said Hoover wisely. They found a red stone under the bushes, just like the map showed.

The next clue was a singing tree. "How can a tree sing?" asked Terry. Hoover's wide eyes blinked. "Let's listen carefully with our ears." The friends sat very quietly in the forest. Felix's big ears turned this way and that. "I hear buzzing!" he whispered. They followed the sound to an old oak tree. Bees hummed as they worked in a hive. "The bees are singing!" laughed Lizzie. Behind the tree, they discovered a golden feather. "Two clues found! We're great listeners," cheered Bart proudly.

The last clue pointed to Rainbow Rock. "I can see it from above," hooted Hoover, flying up high. He guided his friends to a sparkly stone near the river. Terry dove into the water. "It feels smooth and cool!" The friends used all their senses. They looked, listened, smelled, touched, and even tasted the fresh air. Under Rainbow Rock was a box of shiny nature treasures: pretty stones, feathers, and shells. "We found it together!" they cheered. The five friends hugged, happy they used their wonderful senses on this amazing safari.
