THE MYSTERY OF THE MISSING HOMEWORK

BY CHILDBOOK.AI

Aliyah reached into her backpack for her homework. It was gone! "Oh no," she gasped. She grabbed her magnifying glass from her desk. "Detective Aliyah is on the case!" she declared. She tiptoed around her room, checking under books and behind her lamp. No homework anywhere. Something strange was happening, and she was determined to find out exactly what.

Aliyah crouched low, searching for clues. She spotted tiny paper scraps near her bed. "Interesting," she whispered, picking one up. More scraps led toward her closet, then under her bed. She followed the trail like a true detective, her magnifying glass held high. "Whoever took my homework left a trail," she said. Her heart thumped with excitement. The mystery was getting closer to being solved.

Aliyah peeked under her bed and gasped. There was her dog, Biscuit, surrounded by chewed paper bits! "Biscuit! Did you eat my homework?" she asked. Biscuit wagged his tail and licked her hand. Aliyah giggled despite herself. "Case closed," she laughed. "You're the sneaky culprit, you silly pup." She scratched his ears gently, relieved to finally know the truth behind the mystery.

Aliyah sat at her desk and redid her homework carefully. She found a sturdy folder with a snap to keep it safe. "No more sneaky snacks for you," she told Biscuit, who wagged happily. She placed her finished homework inside the folder and smiled proudly. "Mystery solved, homework saved!" she cheered. Detective Aliyah had cracked her very first case.
