SPAIN NOVEMBER 2026

BY CHILDBOOK.AI

Henry stepped off the plane in Spain. It was November 2026, and the air smelled like oranges. 'I can't wait to explore!' Henry said, swinging his backpack. He spotted green hills in the distance and ran toward a sunny meadow, eager for adventure. Little did he know, a gentle bull was resting nearby, sniffing flowers under a cork tree.

In the meadow, Henry found a huge black bull smelling pink flowers. 'Hello!' Henry said softly. The bull looked up kindly. 'I'm Ferdinand,' the bull replied. 'I just like to smell flowers, not fight.' Henry laughed and sat beside him. 'Can I pick flowers with you, Ferdinand?' he asked. Ferdinand nodded happily, and together they gathered daisies, making a colorful crown for Henry's head.

Ferdinand showed Henry around the Spanish countryside. They passed old stone windmills and a sunny orange grove. 'This is amazing!' Henry exclaimed, picking an orange. Ferdinand trotted beside him, tail swishing happily. They reached a small village square with colorful tiled fountains. 'Spain is beautiful,' Henry said. Ferdinand mooed softly in agreement, nudging Henry toward a bench to rest and watch the sunset together.

As the trip ended, Henry hugged Ferdinand goodbye. 'I'll miss you,' Henry said, patting his big head. 'Come back soon,' Ferdinand mooed gently. Henry promised to return next November. He waved from the car window as Ferdinand stood proudly among the flowers. Henry smiled, holding his daisy crown tightly, knowing Spain and his new friend would always be in his heart.
