

DRAGON HEART

by childbook.ai

In Everwood, where magic's not sparse, Daddy with Brooklyn and Logan embarked. A dragon heart, they sought to unmask, In woods deep, where light turns to dark.

The trees whispered secrets, leaves fluttering in glee, 'Beware of the witch,' they warned, 'She's as tricky as can be.' But with Daddy's courage and children by his side, They ventured deeper, with no need to hide.

In a clearing stood the witch, with a cackle and a sneer, 'Looking for the dragon heart? You won't find it here!' But Brooklyn's wit and Logan's laugh made the witch pause, 'Perhaps I'll help, for a good cause.'

'Solve my riddle,' the witch said, 'And the path you'll see.' 'What's strong as dragon scales, yet as gentle as a breeze?' With thoughts intertwined, they guessed, 'It's love!' indeed, The witch smiled, and revealed the path, a good deed.

Atop a hill, beneath stars' gleam, An ancient dragon, as if in a dream. 'The heart you seek,' it said with a spark, 'Lies not in treasure, but in your heart.'

'Courage, kindness, and love are key, To unlock the greatest magic,' said Daddy. Brooklyn and Logan, with eyes wide, Understood that love is the true guide.

With hearts full, they journeyed back,
Through whispering woods, on the homeward track. The witch waved, the trees bowed low, Everwood's magic continued to glow.

Back home, with stories to tell, Of dragons, witches, and magic spells. Daddy, Brooklyn, and Logan knew, Their greatest adventure was love, so true.