

JOHN JR AND OCTUN

by Granny & Al

John Jr went camping with his family one day. The forest was big and ready for play. He wore a hat and carried a toy. The forest was full of joy.

In the woods, John Jr heard a sound. He looked around and saw a mound. From the mound, Octun did appear. A friendly beast, there was no fear.

John Jr and Octun quickly became friends. They played and laughed, the fun never ends. They climbed trees and ran through the grass. Their friendship grew very fast.

They found a stream and skipped some stones. They listened to the forest's lovely tones. They built a fort with sticks and leaves. The day was perfect, no one grieves.

As night fell, they sat by the fire. The stars above, they did admire. They shared stories and marshmallows too. The bond they had was strong and true.

Octun had a gift, a shiny stone. He gave it to John Jr, who felt at home. It glowed bright in the dark night. It was a symbol of their friendship's light.

The camping trip was coming to an end. John Jr was sad to leave his friend. He hugged Octun and said goodbye. They promised to meet again, under the sky.

Back at home, John Jr kept the stone near. It reminded him of the friend so dear. He knew one day they'd meet again. Until then, the memory would remain.
