

LILY AND THE HELPING HANDS

by childbook.ai

Lily woke up to the sounds of a busy morning in her cheerful village home. Mother was dusting the shelves, Father chopped wood outside, and big brother Tim washed breakfast dishes. Even baby Mia giggled in her high chair, watching everyone work with curious eyes.

"Can I help too?" Lily asked, watching her family bustle around. Father smiled warmly and knelt beside her. "Every helping hand makes work lighter, Lily," he explained. "Even little hands like yours can make a big difference."

Lily swept the floor beside Mother, humming a cheerful tune about teamwork. She helped Tim dry dishes, carefully placing each cup on the shelf. When Father carried heavy water buckets from the well, Lily insisted on carrying a small pail herself. "I'm helping too!" she declared proudly.

At dinner, everyone thanked Lily for her help throughout the day. "I want to help every day," she announced, her heart full of joy. Father smiled, "When we all work together, our home is filled with love." That night, Lily dreamed of new ways to help, knowing even small hands make a big difference.
