

“MILO AND THE TALKING TREE”

by Ene Angel & AI

Milo sat near the woods, drawing butterflies in his notebook. Suddenly, he heard a gentle whisper, "Come closer..." Milo's eyes grew wide. "Who said that?" he wondered aloud. The trees swayed, and one seemed to smile at him. Milo tiptoed closer, heart thumping with excitement.

Milo found an enormous oak with a friendly face.
"Hello?" Milo called. The tree's branches rustled.
"Hello, Milo. I'm Tiko, the Talking Tree." Milo gasped,
"A talking tree? That's amazing!" Tiko chuckled warmly, "Trees have many stories to tell."

Tiko shared wonderful tales of birds building homes and ants marching in parades. Milo listened carefully and asked many questions. "How do plants drink rain?" Milo wondered. Tiko showed him leaves dripping with raindrops. "Nature has magic everywhere," Tiko smiled. Milo scribbled notes, eager to learn more.

Tiko encouraged, "Share what you've learned, Milo." So Milo gathered his friends in the village. "Did you know leaves have tiny veins?" he taught them. The friends listened and explored together. Inspired, they started a Nature Club and planted a tree named Tiko's Friends. Milo beamed, ready for more discoveries.
